Amid allegations of anomalies in voter lists raised by the Opposition parties, the Election Commission has decided to deploy a unified Information Technology architecture with a customised dashboard to facilitate different stakeholders and minimise human error.

The single-window platform will streamline input and output of information with role-based access. This will ensure smooth communication between the functionaries with inbuilt cross verification to minimise any human error, the EC said after a two-day conference of Chief Electoral Officers of the States and Union Territories. Among the key deliverables arrived at during the conference here were animated video, audio book, e-book and an integrated dashboard for each of the identified 28 stakeholders as per existing statutory framework and EC instructions issued from time to time.

Animated videos

"Adopting a modern approach to capacity building, a capsule of animated videos will be produced for each stakeholder, compre-hensively covering all aspects of elections related to them. These animated videos will be a handy way for each stakeholder for self-paced continuous learning," the poll body said in a statement.

With an aim to deploying technology to bring in system efficiencies in elections, it was decided that a unified IT architecture with a customised dashboard would be devised to facilitate different stakeholders.

The commission also signalled to the Chief Electoral Officers that a renewed energy be channelled into strengthening communication at CEO and DEO levels for quick response to misinformation and local issues within their domain.

EC to give tech push to smoothen work

NEW DELHI, MARCH 5

The Election Commission (EC) has called for adopting a modern approach and providing digital push for continuous capacity building of functionaries at all levels.

At the end of the two-day conference of chief electoral officers of all states and Union territories, it was also decided to have an integrated IT dashboard for streamline flow of information and services.

The outcome of the conference will take the shape of key deliverables namely animated video, audio book, e-book and an integrated dashboard for each of the identified 28 stakeholders as per existing statutory framework and ECI instructions issued from time to time, a statement from ECI said.

It was decided that a unified IT architecture with a customised dashboard would be devised to facilitate different stakeholders. The single window platform would streamline input and output flow of information with role-based access. This will smoothen communication between the functionaries with in-built cross verification to minimise any human error.

Each CEO has been assigned a distinct stakeholder. The discussions also signalled a renewed energy to be channelled into strengthening communication at CEO and DEO level, for quick response to misinformation and local issues within their domain. CEOs also discussed the need to enhance reach on social media for continuous engagement with voters, in the fast evolving media landscape.

In his concluding remarks chief election commissioner Gyanesh Kumar said that all officials should work as per the existing constitutional.
